'TORRANCE' ADDED TO SOUTH BAY SYMPHONY

The South Bay Civic Symphony Orchestra has a new name: It is now the South Bay-Torrance Civic Symphony Orchestra.

Approval of the orchestra's board of sponsors and directors was announced this week by Elyse Aehle, conductor.

Miss Aehle said that Torrance had furnished many of the group's members and sponsors, therefore the city's name should be included. A request that Torrance be included in the name also was received by the group from Mayor Isen, according to the conductor.

The group now is planning for its annual Festival of the Arts May 18. Rehearsals are held each Monday evening at the Redondo Beach High School auditorium at 7:30.

Tartar Teen Talk

By OLLIE LESSIN

Members of the new Key Club were the guests of their sponsors, the Kiwanians, last Monday night. Attending a dinner at Legion Hall, the Key Clubbers were given all the money received in fines, which amounted to $40. The Key Club plans to initiate new members at the rate of three a week—one senior, junior and sophomore each.

A stag party for the members of the stage crew of the one-acts was held last Friday night after rehearsal. Attending were Eddie Shaw, Jim Weyant, Ollie Lessin, Dan Bridges, Frank Brunel, Bob Cash, Jim Sena, and Henry Hines.

"The plays get better every year!" was a comment made by Miss Rosemary De Camp at the reception after the sixth original one-act play festival. The three plays, "Stay and Die," by Jim Weyant; "Time for Life," by Karen Brunel and Elsa Barlow, and "Money Makes the Difference," by Tom Quaggin, were well received in a full house last Saturday.

Helping Mrs. Shidler judge the plays were Shultzie, Duane Hickman, Steve Peters, Richard Deacon, and Shirley Gordon. They criticized the plays from the standpoint of acting, writing, direction and set design.

Working behind the scenes, and receiving little glory, were such hard workers as Gary Parton, Frank Brunel, Von Hershey, Jim Sena, Eddie Shaw, Gary McKinsey, Ted Kibler, and others. These are the people who really made the show a success, while the actors received the applause.

Tomorrow night, the class of 1960 will treat the student body to one of the most original dances to be imagined. The Ivy League Dance will feature a fine band at the civic and a full evening of entertainment. Due to unfortunate "circumstances," the Four Preps will be unable to attend.

Tonight, Tartars will be treated to the Modern Dance Program in the Auditorium. Admission is 75 cents—Be sure to attend.

After a class discussion of where to go for a trip, the Seniors voted overwhelmingly (200-8) for Catalina.

The North Hi Breeze

By LEILA SANTOR

Saxons go French as the girls ask the guys to the GAA backwards dance, "April in Paris," tomorrow night. The dance is dressy but that is only ankles up as the turnout is also a sock hop.

Admission is 75 cents per couple with GAA card and 90 cents without. Music will be by the Saxon Dance Band.

Capris, pedal pushers, and bermudas will decorate the fairer half of the Saxon population as they take part in the Girls' League "Capri Capers" day tomorrow.

Tickets for this always popular activity are 10 cents.

Saxons better "get on the ball" and buy that only-a-dollar ticket which will entitle them to an entire week of activity. April 22 through 26 marks the annual Variety Five Shipwreck Days sponsored by the junior class.

The Shipwreck Dance with its coronation of Robinson Crusoe and his Gal Friday is planned to be really special. It is also rumored that the high witch doctor of Hago Fango will be on hand to discipline any slaves who become unruly on Slave Day.

Congratulations to Marjorie Towle for being selected as the American Field Service representative from North High abroad this coming summer. This junior is known for her work on many junior class committees.

Message from many: Quarter grades came out Tuesday and we want you to remember that old cliché "misery loves company" and realize that we're all in this mess together.

Work on the Junior-Senior Prom is under way. The date for the much awaited dinner and dance is May 18.

North High will be transformed into a virtual paradise as the juniors and seniors and their dates enjoy this annual event. Co-chairmen for the prom are Pat Hannah and Pat Husson.
